A wide-angle, aerial photograph of the city of Santiago, Chile, during sunset. The city is densely packed with buildings of various heights, including several modern skyscrapers. In the foreground, there are more residential buildings and some green spaces. The Andes mountain range is visible in the background, with its peaks silhouetted against the bright sky. The sky itself is a vibrant orange and yellow, transitioning into a lighter blue as it meets the horizon. The overall atmosphere is one of a bustling urban center nestled in a mountainous region.
